Play the game the generals
play... for real.

Feel the goose bumps on your neck begin to rise as you take your seat in front of the video monitor. The situation pictured before your eyes is critical. Actual enemy nuclear attack on your most important cities and natural resources has begun.

Only you can determine the best strategic defense of the nation. Only you can effectively repel the enemy attack.

But the situation worsens. As you're attempting to rebuild your cities and keep production of goods and services going, you pick up enemy spies lurking within your midst on your video close-up monitor. Can you effectively deal with them... even as more enemy missiles are approaching?

Your time is running out.

It's WAR ROOM. The new high-technology Probe 2000 strategy game for the ColecoVision™ game system. The game

that's so realistic, generals might even play it.
Isn't it time you tested your skills?

THE KID WHO COLLECTS SPIDER-MAN!

CONOVER'S CORNER
by JACOB CONOVER

Timothy Harrison is one of those special young men. He's sharp, bright, likable, and nine years old... going on thirty-five. You know the kind I mean. You talk to him for five minutes, and you get the odd feeling that he's already been around the track a few times, despite his youthful appearance.

Tim (he prefers not to be called Timmy) is like a lot of other kids his age. He's seen all the Star Wars movies about a dozen times each. He's a big Mets fan, and he enjoys whatever noise that's passing for music these days. What makes Tim different from most of his classmates, though, is that he has a hobby of which J. Jonah Jameson, this paper's esteemed publisher, would certainly not approve.

Tim collects Spider-Man. He has a huge old trunk filled with Spider-Man memorabilia. There Tim collects Spider-Man. He has a huge old trunk filled with Spider-Man memorabilia. There are eight big scrapbooks overflowing with magazine and newspaper clippings, kinescopes of Spider-Man's rare television appearances, and a handful of souvenirs which can only be called unique. When I paid Tim a visit the other day, he eagerly opened his trunk to answer my typically nosy questions.

"I was real lucky to get some of these clippings," said Tim, flipping through the oldest scrapbook. "I was just a little kid when a lot of these stories were printed. But my grandfather knew a lady who saved old copies of the Daily Bugle, and a bunch of other papers, going back a long way. So I was able to get clippings of the earliest stories on Spider-Man that were ever run."

And the Kinescopes?

"They were harder to find," admitted Tim. "Heck, most folks at TV station had practically forgotten that Spider-Man ever existed."

And, of course, there are those souvenirs.

"My cousin Al was on a field trip to some museum in the city, when Spider-Man stopped some guys who were trying to steal rare jewels that were on loan from India or somewhere. Al had his camera with him, and he shot a whole set of slides of Spider-Man in action!" Then, Tim dug into the trunk and pulled out a jar holding five flattened .38 slugs. "I dug these out of the sides of a building in Forest Hills, the day after Spider-Man surprised some hold-up men outside of a branch bank! He moved so fast, they never hit him once!" said Tim proudly.

There were other items in the trunk, but I wasn't as interested in them, as I was in the young man who collected them. Tim was obviously quite an admirer of the one who

Bulpen Bulletins

Hi! I'm not Jim Shooter, but Jim is my boss. I'm Lynn, his assistant. My job is to help Jim. And that means trying to help some of the people who call or come to Jim's office with questions or problems. Editors, writers, artists, movie producers, and other important Big Wheels come here to see Jim. I handle as much as I can for him because he's soooo busy! The most important people I help are you, the Marvel Comics fans out there who write or call with all sorts of serious (and sometimes crazy) questions. That's a huge job, so I have an assistant too! Her name is Margaret Clark, and she's terrific! We're here to help. We can tell you the best way to send in your art and writing submissions or help you find your local comics shop. But we're real busy, so when you call or write to Jim or us, please be as brief as you can. Please clearly state what you want to know. We will find out and get back to you as soon as we can.

We get a lot of requests to give tours. We get so many requests that we couldn't possibly give a tour to everyone who asks. And since it isn't fair to put just a few, we don't give any! We are working on doing something about that, but because, really, we love giving tours. It's a fun meeting other people who are as excited about Marvel Comics as we are (and it's one of the few times that Jim unchains us from our desks). But, until then, I thought I'd give you a quick tour of the Marvel Bulpen.

JACK ABEL'S SHORTS...

Jack Abel is an inker (a great one!) who works in the Bulpen. His "shorts" are about 3 feet wide, have great big red polka dots, and are made of cardboard. Someone took a great big bite on one side! They are hanging at the front of Jack's drawing table where he often sleeps... err... um... works. I'm not certain why somebody stuck those shorts on Jack's table, but they sure look funny.

THE SANCTUARY OF THE ANCIENT ONE

Nearly to Jack recines paste-up man Morne Kuramoto, who, according to legend, is the oldest Bulpenner. He'll tell you about the healthful properties of onions, garlic and carrot juice - but see this month's Bulpen Bulletins Special, which appears in Marvel's three Direct-Only titles, Micronauts, Moon Knight, and Ka-Zar where Bulpen Manager Danny Crespi gets Morne to tell all.

And Danny! Danny Crespi is an adorable cube (maybe the nicest man in the whole world!) who's taken to wearing suspenders. Poor Danny, gets just love snapping suspenders.

RON'S COMMAND CENTER

Ron Zama is Danny's assistant manager - it's no easy task to run the Bulpen. Besides all the other important stuff he does, Ron's duties include supervising the operation of the Bulpen's toaster (which he's nicknamed "ROM") and storing volleyball equipment. Yep, we sometimes play volleyball in nearby Madison Park at lunchtime!

PARKER'S ALL-NITE LETTERING SERVICE

Nearly to Ron is Rick Parker - ace letterer and all-around hard worker. This man doesn't ever go home! He's always working in the morning when I come in and even if I leave at 10 p.m., he's still there working. If he does go to sleep, I bet he sleeps with his Crocquiul pen clenched tightly in his hand.

DESIGNER'S DEN

The Bulpen has a great design and production team. There's Joe Albano, Barry Shapiro and Robbin Brosterman all in a row. They work on the magazines designing layouts and doing paste-ups and after they finish they climb out and dust themselves off.

ALSO IN THE 'PEN

...are Paul Becton, who does coloring and referencing, George Roussos, cover artist, John Tartaglione, who does art corrections, and John Morel, who's a letterer. They call John M. "Squid" because he worked on a ship one summer. He's very muscular (because he lifts weights) and he looks kinda like the Sub-Mariner!

EDITOR'S ROW

Across from the Bulpen is Editor's Row which is growing ever longer. Each office has a personality unique to each team. There are cartoons on the doors, walls and windows. There's all sorts of weird, crazy and fun things going on all the time. But there are too many of them for me to tell you all about all of them here - and, besides, you hear more about them than the other Bulpeners.

STATS 'R US!

I mustn't forget Robbie Carosella and Harry Candelario who do the photostats and who are a big part of the Marvel Bulpen. Since every single page of every single Marvel Comics must pass through the stat room, their job is critically important. I try to treat them right! And, Robbie manages the Marvel Solitair Team!

OUR 'PEN MOTHER

Who ties it all together? It's our lovely Traffic Manager Virginia Roma. Virginia is the one who encourages the editors to get the creative people to finish their work on time! She also makes sure that all in-house work gets out to the printers. Without Virginia you might have to wait MONTHS between your favorite titles. It's time Virginia gets some fan mail of her own! Thanks, Virginia.

THE THRONE ROOM!

Jim Shooter's office is along Editor's Row, but just a bit away from the Bulpen. He's got a big table for a desk. On his desk is the Buboligum Machine that Terry Austin, Les Sapp and I gave him for Christmas. We do our best to keep it filled with jelly beans for Jim, but Chris Claremont and everyone else keep doing their best to empty it! Jim's desk is surrounded by the piles of mail that he gets everyday. You already know that he reads all his mail. He'd love to answer it all, but of course, it just isn't humanly possible! Jim also has a small comfy chair that swivels. And since he's away now, I'm sitting in his chair swiveling and writing his Bulpen Bulletin. I wonder if anyone will notice?

Take care,

Lynn E. Cohen

DANNY FINGEROTH
EDITOR
BOB DeNATALE
ASSISTANT EDITOR

BEFORE WE BEGIN

If you've been following the Bulpen Bulletins, you already know that this is Assistant Editor's Month here at Marvel, when all the editors are away at comics conventions and all the assistants are in charge of the titles they work on. For this issue, with Danny Fingeroth away, I'm in charge of AMAZING SPIDER-MAN and I've prevailed upon Roger Stern to deliver not one, but two stories... with two different sets of artists and two decidedly different dramatic tones. I asked Rog and the rest of my creative crews to come up with a pair of special stories that would contrast each other and bring out two distinct yet important facets of the web-slinger's legend. The guys really came through. "Thunderball" is action from beginning to end - real good action I might add. "Kid", on the other hand, is one of the most touching stories I've ever read. I'm glad Rog did it. I needed some heavy drama to balance out the strange goings-on in PETER PARKER and MARVEL TEAM-UP this month. (And if that's not a teaser, I don't know what is!)

And, in case you're wondering just where the credits for this issue's twin triumphs are, why they're right here (this is my month and I can put 'em anywhere I want, so there!):

"AND HE STRIKES LIKE THUNDER-BALL"

ROGER STERN, writer
JOHN ROMITA, JR., pencil breakdowns
BRETT BREEDING, finishes
DIANA ALBERS, letters
BOB SHAREN, colors
BOB DeNATALE, editor
JIM SHOOTER, editor-in-chief

"THE KID WHO COLLECTS SPIDER-MAN"

ROGER STERN, writer
RON FRENZ, pencil breakdowns
TERRY AUSTIN, finishes
JOE ROSEN, letters
CHRISTIE SCHEELE, colors
BOB DeNATALE, editor
JIM SHOOTER, editor-in-chief

Now without further ado is a representative sampling of the mail on an earlier precedent-shattering issue...

Dear Roger, John, Dave, Joe, Bob, Tom and Jim:

AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #243 must have been one of the best or worst issues of this comic... ever. I lean towards the former.

Peter Parker leaves school? Wow. That's really a heavy move. However, it is in keeping with the way in which Peter has been maturing lately.

Thank you all for the last three pages of this issue. I've been collecting this comic for eight years, and those pages were probably the most touching in all the issues I'd read.

Judging from the title of next issue, ASM #244 will be just as good.

John Warren
Charleston, WV 25314

Dear Rog and John,

I can't believe you did it! Peter Parker quit school? Never! He'd come so far and worked so hard - he'd even passed his first-year exams! I never would have thought Pete could quit after that. He was also elated when he discovered that he'd made that "A". Besides, he's not been going to school just for himself... he's been going for his Aunt May and Uncle Ben. Remember how they'd always dreamed that one day he'd become a great scientist?

Sure. Peter Parker has financial problems, but he's always managed to keep them at bay. Throwing away his studies after having come so far is no answer. Pete has never let his problems get to him like this before, except for those occasions when he's considered giving up his identity as Spider-Man. I just can't see Pete giving up so easily. It seems that his main reason for quitting school is because the second year is more demanding than the first. I don't think Pete would ever give up anything so important as his studies... at least not without first starting his second year and seeing if he could make it.

AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #243 was a good issue... except for one unpleasant option.

John Bush
La Follette, TN 37766

Dear Garig,

I would never have believed that anything could make me like Spider-Man more than I already do. Stories might improve, art might improve, but characterization? Never. How could anyone improve on so well-defined a person as Peter Parker?

Spider-Man, after all, is a real woman's hero: honest, clean, intelligent, caring, romantic... he's even a non-smoker! The clincher was his involvement with photography. So many heroes - although otherwise quite good - are too much the single-minded leaders (i.e. Mr. Fantastic or the Black Panther). His work as a part-time photographer showed how multi-faceted Peter really is.

But to give up graduate school?

That's really heavy. I like it. Even if he eventually returns to school, just to have the option of a life away from academia, of being able to choose his photography over a career in the sciences... well, I'm stunned. Words are too inadequate.

Thelma Spivey
Lexington, KY 40508

Dear Rog and John,

Thanks for the very enjoyable AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #243. The developing plots and subplots have been great over the last few issues.

The scene in which Spider-Man defeated the terrorists in the church was particularly inventive. It showed the same kind of creativity, suspense, intrinsic humor, slickness and hand-clapping heroism which is typical of the movies of Steven Spielberg.

And Peter Parker's reaction - as Spider-Man - when he learned that he'd aged his leap and bounds, and the kissing of the professor. As a second-year biology major, currently in the midst of summer research, I can really sympathize with Peter Parker.

Earl Morrison
Dalhousie University
Halifax, Nova Scotia

Dear Roger and John,

I recently read in MARVEL AGE magazine that John Romita, Jr. will soon be penciling the X-MEN. Is this a permanent assignment? And, if so, who will be taking his place? Right now, I couldn't imagine someone else drawing AMAZING SPIDER-MAN.

Dan Poritas
Culver City, CA 90230

Not to worry, Dan. Yes, the X-MEN is a permanent assignment, but it's one which John is assuming in addition to his attention-getting work on SPIDER-MAN. He's just giving up sleeping.

Dear Marvel,

Until a couple of years ago, I moved along on a flowing stream... never really thinking much, never looking at my options, never deciding anything. When I finished junior college, everyone just assumed that I would continue on. I didn't, and that surprised them. I chose not to continue my education, at least not for the present. The decision was not a popular one with my family, but I held out and won. It was never a win-or-lose decision for me - just as it wasn't a win-or-lose option for Peter Parker in SPIDER-MAN #244 - but it was necessary.

Since then, I've had to make other decisions in regard to my personal life. They weren't easy ones either, but I've survived. But now, Peter's landmark decision has made me contemplate another decision that's been staring me in the face. You see, I'm going to have to temporarily give up comics, so I can concentrate on other areas of my life. What with some of the subscriptions I have, this will be a gradual departure, occurring over the next year or so. But you have given me endless hours of entertainment, excitement, wonder and reflection. In case I don't get another chance, I wanted to say thanks... and where better to say it than in one of the titles which first attracted me to this unique medium.

I'll be back, guys. Honest. It may be a while, but I'll be back... and I'll check in on Peter. Count on it.

Hang tough, Chris. We'll be waiting. You can count on that!

NEXT ISSUE: Hobgoblin, the Kingpin, Harry Osborn, Peter Parker, J. Jonah Jameson, Liz Allen Osborn, Roderick Kingsley, Mary Jane Watson, George Vandergill, Dr. Martin Madison... all caught up in a web of mystery, extortion and "Secrets!" Some will be revealed in AMAZING SPIDER-MAN #249. Be there, and be enlightened!

Psst! Hey! How did I do? How'd I like this issue? Is Danny gonna be proud of me... or am I in a lot of trouble? If you liked this ish - write in quick! If you didn't... keep it to yourself, just this month, okay? Thanks.

MARVEL®

Ya gets 'em from fightin' with big, bad bullies like Brutusk. And from punchin' out beer bottles. And from blasticatin' vultures. And from runnin' around trying to make points with shapely dames like me goil, Olive. Natcherally, it doesn't hoit to down a can o' spinach once in a whilst.

And that's exackly what yas does in me new Popeye home video game from Parker Brothers. Runnin' through three screens at a bliskerin' pace, just like the arcade.

So you's can ferget all them new fandangled body buildin' schemes. Playin' me new video game at home can give ya fabulouusk forearms like me own, in no time at all.

Screen 3 is the most dangerouusk of them all.
